jan 2012 2.530799 seconds matlab r2012a license standalone dat 19 jan 2012 2.078345 seconds I can use these codes but I am looking for a better solution for my application. Thank you A: Try using ndgrid in the place of repmat. Example: N = 10; M = 2; % Generate random data matrix X = rand(N, M); % Convert data matrix to cell array X = {X{:}}; % Use ndgrid to generate M by N data arrays C = ndgrid(1:M,1:N); % Save to X for later X = cat(1,X{:}); Michigan Gorsuch Replacement Should Be Confirmed June 27, 2017 We have written before that the confirmation of Neil Gorsuch to the Supreme Court should be decided by the Senate, not by President Trump. It's only appropriate that this confirmation comes to the Senate floor for an up-or-down vote. This is what the Constitution and the precedent of the Supreme Court intended. While the President was free to put forth a list of potential nominees, or even nominate his own candidate, the Senate has to be the final arbiter of these nominations. The Justice Department notes that Gorsuch's record indicates he "rejects the notion of a presidential nominee having a pre-ordained outcome that overrides the determination of the Senate." The ACLU noted that Gorsuch is "the first Supreme Court nominee to claim that a president's job is not to seek the best possible outcome." This should be a major point of contention between the Administration and Democrats during Gorsuch's confirmation hearings, and we're hoping it is. Democrats are basically framing the confirmation as "divorced from the will of the American people." But as a recent article in the Washington Post points out, there is no evidence to support this assertion. Polls over the last year show that the American people have shown overwhelming support for Neil Gorsuch. On numerous occasions in his writing, including an analysis of a Supreme Court case, Gorsuch has expressed his support for the very rights and freedoms that the Trump Administration has fought to protect. This is a case of hypocrisy on the part of Democrats, who claim to be advocates for the people and their rights and 82157476af
